NEW VOYAGES TO CAROLINA
Reinterpreting North Carolina History
Edited by Larry E. Tise and Jeffrey J. Crow

New Voyages to Carolina offers a bold new approach for understanding and telling North Carolina's history. Recognizing the need for such a fresh approach and reflecting a generation of recent scholarship, eighteen distinguished authors have sculpted a broad, inclusive narrative of the state's evolution over more than four centuries. The volume provides new lenses and provocative possibilities for reimagining the state's past. Transcending traditional markers of wars and elections, the contributors map out a new chronology encompassing geological realities; the unappreciated presence of Indians, blacks, and women; religious and cultural influences; and abiding preferences for industrial development within the limits of "progressive" politics. While challenging traditional story lines, the authors frame a candid tale of the state's development.

Contributors include Dorothea V. Ames, Karl E. Campbell, James C. Cobb, Peter A. Coclanis, Stephen Feeley, Jerry Gershenhorn, Glenda Elizabeth Gilmore, Patrick Huber, Charles F. Irons, David Moore, Michael Leroy Oberg, Stanley R. Riggs, Richard D. Starnes, Carole Watterson Troxler, Bradford J. Wood, and Karin Zipf.

"An important contribution to how we write and understand North Carolina history, one that will help us to reassess how the narrative of the state should be constructed as we move into the twenty-first century."

--William Link, author of North Carolina: Change and Tradition in a Southern State

"By using new research and new modes of analysis to expand and complicate standard narratives of North Carolina's past, the essays in this collection take meaningful steps toward a much-needed new synthesis of the state's history."
